These areas would become Northern Ireland and the Republic of Ireland. 2002-0033-F 3 Anglo-Irish Treaty (1921) The Treaty was an agreement between the United Kingdom and representatives of the Irish Republic, which ended the Irish War of Independence and established the Irish Free State as part of the British Empire. It also provided Northern Ireland, which had been created by The 1920 Government of Ireland Act, an option to opt out of the Irish Free State, which it did. The Troubles (1960s - 1998) This was the latest period of violence between the nationalist Irish groups and those loyal to the United Kingdom in regard to the disputed status of Northern Ireland. The impasse came about due to varying opinions on whether Northern Ireland would remain part of the United Kingdom or vote to end British rule and join the Republic of Ireland. The Troubles were exacerbated by domination and discrimination of the predominately Roman Catholic minority nationalist community by the unionist Protestant majority. The violence was characterized by armed battles between nationalist paramilitary and pro-unionist groups. Anglo-Irish Accord (1985) This was a treaty between the United Kingdom and the Republic of Ireland which aimed to end "The Troubles" in Northern Ireland. It acknowledged the Irish government as having an advisory role in Northern Ireland's government, yet confirmed that Northern Ireland would be recognized as part of the United Kingdom until a majority agreed to join the Republic. The objective of giving Dublin an advisory role in the governing of Northern Ireland was to ensure that the rights of the Catholic minority were taken into consideration. Anglo-Irish Agreement This act is a U.S. bill which authorizes contributions to the International Support Act of 1986 Fund of Ireland. Irish Immigration Reform Established May 20, 1987 The IIRM's purpose was to support the Movement (IIRM) idea of legal status for new Irish immigrants and encourage immigration reform, in general. Presentation of St. Patrick's This event is a yearly presentation of a bowl full of shamrocks from the Day Shamrocks Republic of Ireland to the United States as a symbol of warm relations between the two countries. Brooke Initiative This peace-making strategy is named after the British Secretary of State for Northern Ireland Affairs, Peter Brooke. In an attempt to bring peace to Northern Ireland, this was intended as a response to Northern Unionists and an alternative to the Anglo-Irish Agreement. MacBride Principles These guidelines were named after Sean MacBride, a Nobel Prize and Lenin Peace Prize winner and Chairman of The Caucus (a group who aimed to share views with the Irish National Caucus, a United States- based organization). The hope was that a set of requirements for U.S. firms to practice equal opportunity and affirmative action in Northern Ireland would promote fair employment.
